ATFCU Shines for 81st Annual Meeting & Dinner

On March 30th, the spotlight was on Alcoa Tenn Federal Credit Union for its 81st Annual Meeting. More than 300 members assembled at Alcoa High School to share a great meal, a glowing fiscal report, and some positive plans for the future.

The event took on a special shine with Alcoa Tenn's Chuck Sayne as emcee. Board members provided reports on credit union operations, and three members, Bob Sowders, Al Cage, and Carl Guider, were re-elected to three-year terms. Good humor and door prizes were sprinkled in with the business.

The featured guest speaker this year was Greg McClain, Maryville City Manager, who shared his slide presentation of and fascination with Blount County history with the crowd. He highlighted several familiar landmarks and events in Maryville, Alcoa, and nearby Smoky Mountains.

"The mountains are a real thread through our history and everything that we do," he said.

The focus then turned to the special people of the present. Volunteer and Board member Bob Sowders was honored as the Ronald C. Manges Memorial Award recipient. Sowders, an Alcoa, Inc. retiree, continues to give of his time and talent, not only as an ATFCU Board member, but also as a trainer at the aluminum plant, a Blount County Rescue Squad volunteer, and Red Cross instructor. He was commended for his dedication, leadership, helpfulness, and cheerful willingness to promote the credit union—values common to Manges Award honorees.

Board member Ken Jennings was also recognized for his 20 years as a volunteer.

President/CEO David Proffitt took the opportunity to focus on the monetary success, technological advances, and future developments at the credit union. But he added that ATFCU really shines in the way it has helped its members face personal fiscal challenges.

"Those are the things that made us get through 81 years," Proffitt said.

The 2017 Annual Meeting may now be over for this year, but the credit union remains a beacon in serving its members far into the future.
